Neustettin: Dismemberment of 2,000 Girls by Red Army

The description of the crimes committed on 2,000 girls in the RAD, and BDM-camp in Neustettin by Red Army members and Poles were horrendous, and if fully disclosed that it could effect the readers to the point of being permanently damaged. It is almost indescribable what the means of bodily torture were and the numbers of them that had been massacred.

What follows is a documented authentic eyewitness account. The accredited report is that of Leonora Geier (nee Cavoa born October 22, 1925, Sao Paulo, Brazil). It was made before Dr. Trutz Foelsche, Ph. D. Present was Bernard Wassmann, Reiner Halhammer, Manfred Haer, Kyrrill Wratilavo. Witnesses confirm that the Leonora Geier made this report without any coercion, threats or outside influence. The German-Brazilian national was motivated solely by the desire to make the terrible events of the time known to posterity.

The report, drawn up on October 6th, 1955, covers events of February 16, 17 and 18, of 1945. At the time this witness was employed as a typist in Camp Vilmsee administered by the Women's Labor Service RAD. Before the expulsions Leonore Geier resided in Bahnstrasse 8, Hirschberg, Thuringia. Being a Brazilian national she was considered by the Russian forces to be an ally forced into labor in the service of the National Socialist state. For this reason those who carried out the carnage had no objection to her being witness to the bloodbath. The true story of this harrowing story first appeared in Deutsche Nationalzeitung, No. 17-65, p.7.

On the morning of February 16th, a Russian union occupied the Radlager (camp) Vilmsee in Neustettin. The commissioner told me in good German that the camp has been disbanded and that we as a uniformed unit will be transported to a collection camp immediately. Since I was a member of the United Nations of the Allies as a Brazilian, he gave me the responsibility of leading the transport which was to go to Neustettin in the yard of an old iron factory. We were about 500 young women in the female RAD.

The commissioner treated us very courteously and gave us the foreign workers barracks to settle in. The place given though was much too tight for us for which I went to the commissioner to discuss. He said that it was only temporarily, and that I can come to the office if it is too tight for me there, which I accepted. Immediately, he explained to me not to have any more contact with the others, since they are an illegal army, German work army. He told me that l would be shot if I repeated anything in any form. I suddenly heard loud screaming, two Red Army men brought in five German girls. The commissioner ordered them to take off their clothes. When they resisted out of shame, he ordered me to take off their clothes, and to follow him with them.

We walked across the courtyard to the former kitchen of the camp which was completely emptied, except for a few tables near the windows. It was terribly cold and the poor women shook. In the large tiled room there were a few Russians waiting who made obscene remarks because every word was countered with loud laughing. The commander told me to watch how wimping rags are made out of Herrenmenschen, (master people). Two Poles then entered wearing only pants. When the girls saw them they began to scream. Quickly they grabbed the first one, and bent her over the table with her back across the edge of the table until her joints cracked. I nearly passed out when one of them pulled out a knife, and cut off her right breast right in front of us. Then he waited a moment, and then he cut off the other one. I have never heard a human being scream so desperately as this girl. After this operation he stabbed her several times into her crotch which was responded to by jeering of the other Russians.

The next one screamed for mercy, but to no avail. Since she was especially pretty, I had the impression they did the abysmal game extra slowly. The other three were collapsed, screamed for their mother and begged for a fast death, but they also had the same fate. The last one was still half a child with hardly developed breasts. They basically ripped the meat from her ribs until the white bone showed.

Again they brought in another five girls. This time they took their pick as all were well developed and pretty. When they saw the bodies of the other girls they started to cry and to scream. With weak strength they tried to defend themselves. But it did not help any. The Poles became more and more cruel. One of them cut open one girl's stomach lengthwise and poured a can of machine oil into her which he tried to set on fire. The others shoved an object into her vagina before they cut off her breasts.

A great jeering started when they brought a saw from the tool box. Now they sawed off the breasts on the rest of the girls. Before no time the floor was covered with blood. Bloodlust grabbed the Russians. Constantly they kept bringing girls. Like in a red fog I saw these horrible deeds. Repeatedly I heard the blood curdling screams when they sawed off their breasts and the loud groaning when they mutilated their genitals. When my legs gave in, they forced me on a chair. The commissioner constantly paid attention that I would watch. When I started to vomit they held up the torturing for me to finish. One girl had not taken all her clothes of; she was a little older than the others, whose ages were around 17. They soaked her brassiere with oil and lit it up. When she screamed they jammed a thin iron bar through her genitals until it came out in her naval.

In the court yard they liquidated with clubs, whole groups of the girls after they selected the prettiest ones for the Martyr room. The air was filled with the death scream of many hundreds of girls. But compared to what was playing out in this room, the beating to death method was more human. It was a terrible reality that none of the girls lost consciousness. Each one suffered the mutilations while being fully conscious.

In their terror the the girls all said the same things; the begging for mercy; the high scream when they cut their breasts, and the agony cries when they mutilated their genitals. Several times they stopped the murdering to brush the blood outside and to remove the bodies. In the evening I got a strong nerve fever. From then on all my memories faded until to the time when I woke up in a hospital. German troops had temporarily conquered Neustettin back and liberated it. I learned later, in the first three days of the first Russian occupation they murdered about 2,000 girls who were in the work camps in the area of RAD, BDM and other camps.

The Chief instigator for these crimes was the Jew, Ilja Ehrenburg. In his works published in Moscow, called "Woina" (war) he quoted the following passages amidst others, "The Germans are not human. If you do not kill at least one German per a day, then this day is a lost day. For us there is nothing more joyful than German corpses. With this, we are continuing the works of Pasteur who discovered the serum against rabies. We are with this continuing the works of all scientists which have discovered the methods for the annihilation of deadly microbes."

At least six million Germans were victims of the mass crimes of the Allies. But they are only a part of the European losses. Great losses were experienced in the ethnic cleansing of Germans in the so called "Saeuberungen" in 1944/45 in France, Italy, Yugoslavia, and the Sowjetunion. A conservative estimate would be 15 Million victim deaths died horrifically after the end of the war.

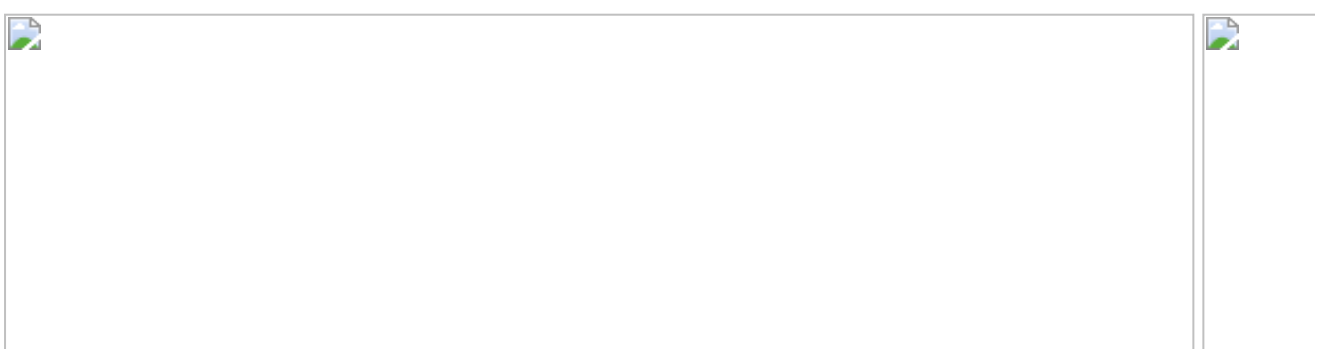

Stalin's men were here . . .!

October 20, 1944, the village of Nemmersdorf, in East Prussia, 25 miles from the frontier, was occupied by Red Army troops. Soviet tank formations had unexpectedly made a breakthrough.

Two days later, the village was re-taken by German forces. They found the bodies of 33 of the villagers who had been murdered and mutilated. 16 were women, 2 were girls of twenty, 4 were schoolchildren. One babe in arms had been shot through the head. Two small children had had their heads bashed in. The remaining 8 were men.

The two girls had been raped, and then stabbed to death.

Most of the victims had smashed skulls. All had been shot in the head from close range as well, the majority by small calibre pistols. The children had been killed in this manner too. Even the infant had a bullet-hole in the forehead. One man had been sexually outraged.

The type of weapon used in most cases was a small pistol of the sort usually carried only by Red Army officers and their political commissars.

Similar massacres occurred in other villages in this area which could not be evacuated in time.

Maybe you understand now why we are fighting against the Bolsheviks.

And why we are fighting you too.

You are attacking us in the rear while we are struggling to hold back these bestial hordes from our country.

A Russian soldier, taken prisoner near Nemmersdorf.

Above: One of the girls of Nemmersdorf, ravaged, mutilated and murdered. Some of the women had been slashed with knives and unspeakably mutilated.

Above right: This nine-months old baby had been shot through the head. His mother was found lying a little way distant. She had been raped, then slaughtered.

Below right: A little boy, the youngest of a Nemmersdorf peasant family who were all killed by Stalin's soldiers. Together with his mother and two older sisters, this child was murdered by blows with rifle-butts and then shot.

Left: One of the old men who were in the village when the Red Army tanks came in. His face has been bashed in.

In 1939 Britain pledged assistance to Poland in the event of aggression. By our declaration of the 3rd of September we did associate ourselves with her cause, although we could afford no material support. This declaration of war was made when her western frontiers were overrun by Germany, but no similar declaration was made when on the 17th of September her eastern defenses were stormed by Russia. A delicate question. Our action, if hardly logical, was at least indicative of the realistic trends of British diplomatic machinations.

This first issue, virtually a test case, if not honorably settled will rout any hope we may have of a balance of power in Europe. It will constitute a flagrant disregard by the U.S.S.R. of all treaties ratified by her and a virtual admission by Britain of the U.S.S.R. as the supreme power in Europe. A sorry tribute to Britain and to her Empire, which stood alone during those dark and crucial days after the fall of France.

You raised the question in your speech of British approval of the Russo-Polish frontiers. But, surely the guarantee of these frontiers and our frequent re-affirmation of our intention to restore them was sufficient indication of our approval of them. The League of Nations set up after the last war was admittedly a failure, but what hope can we have of establishing any similar institution, the existence of which in some form will be essential to safeguard post-war Europe from the disasters of this first part of the twentieth century—if the U.S.S.R. assumes the role of European dictator even before the peace is won?

Let it not be recorded for posterity how the descendant of the glorious Marlborough was diverted from his path of honor and justice by the ruthless leader of a terror regime, and we can hardly consider that of the Soviet as other than terrorist, when to maintain order it required to detain in captivity twenty millions of its one hundred and eighty millions subjects.

Let it not be said of the one-time invincible Churchill: "Were it not better had he gone down in his glory at Teheran before the pass was sold, rather than live to associate his name and that of the Empire with such ignominy and shame."

(Signed) E. J. CAMBELL.[45]

As the Polish press in England indicated, undoubtedly many Poles would have identified themselves with the spirit and the wording of this communication.

It was rather difficult, however, to sway Churchill from a policy, once he had adopted it. And apparently Churchill was determined to carry out his Teheran commitments loyally.

On February 29, 1944 the British Ministry of Information sent the following note to the higher British clergy and to the BBC.

Sir,

I am directed by the Ministry to send you the following circular letter:

It is often the duty of the good citizens and of the pious Christians to turn a blind eye on the peculiarities of those associated with us.

But the time comes when such peculiarities, while still denied in public, must be taken into account when action by us is called for.

We know the methods of rule employed by the Bolshevik dictator in Russia itself from, for example, the writing and speeches of the Prime Minister himself during the last twenty years. We know how the Red Army behaved in Poland in 1920 and in Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Galicia, and Bessarabia only recently.

We must, therefore, take into account how the Red Army will certainly behave when it overruns Central Europe. Unless precautions are taken, the obviously inevitable horrors which will result will throw an undue strain on public opinion in this country.

We cannot reform the Bolsheviks but we can do our best to save them —and ourselves—from the consequences of their acts. The disclosures of the past quarter of a century will render mere denials unconvincing. The only alternative to denial is to distract public attention from the whole subject.

Experience has shown that the best distraction is atrocity propaganda directed against the enemy. Unfortunately the public is no longer so susceptible as in the days of the "Corpse Factory," the "Mutilated Belgian Babies," and the "Crucified Canadians."

Your cooperation is therefore earnestly sought to distract public attention from the doings of the Red Army by your wholehearted support of various charges against the Germans and Japanese which have been and will be put into circulation by the Ministry.

Your expression of belief in such may convince others.

I am, Sir, Your obedient servant,

(Signed) H. HEWET, ASSISTANT SECRETARY

The Ministry can enter into no correspondence of any kind with regard to this communication which should only be disclosed to responsible persons.[46]

It is unknown how many recipients of this communication complied with the above instructions.

On March 9, 1944 Mr. McLaren, the Head of the Political Desk of the Political Intelligence Department in the British Foreign Office, informed Mr. J. Zaranski, the counselor to the Polish Prime Minister, that he had received a specific order to prepare a series of broadcasts to Poland in Polish and other languages in order to prepare Polish public opinion about the necessity of giving up a considerable part of its eastern territories without mentioning, for the time being, the Curzon Line. These broadcasts were almost ready in the BBC, and they would go on the air without any delay. Upon being informed of this proposal, Mikolajczyk categorically rejected the plan, as a result of which the Foreign Office temporarily abandoned it.[47]

At the same time, the democratic organizations which were fighting the Nazis and suddenly were faced with a new terror, sent an urgent appeal to the peoples of the world through their Government in London, asking for help and implying that they had lost faith in Western leaders.

Germany was to suffer the most. Five million servicemen and women, civilians too, were abducted to the Soviet Union's gulag archipelago. A further four million, mostly civilians, were slaughtered by the Red Army during its terrifying surge across Germany's northern borders. An estimated additional 5,000,000 in what was left of Germany were starved and otherwise maltreated to death after the war's end.

When Churchill was leaving London to meet Roosevelt for a conference in Quebec late in the summer of 1943, a reporter asked if they were planning to offer peace terms to Germany.
Churchill replied: "Heavens, no. They would accept immediately."– Revisionist Viewpoints, pg.75 by James J. Martin.
